

DEENVIEW PROJECT 2018

CONSENT FORM for PARTICIPANTS (ACCESSIBLE)

Deenview Project is an art project about the ways we talk, communicate, understand each other. We are thinking about how we use our signs and pictures to tell people what we need, think, imagine etc.

We are working together with Tunde at workshops. This work is part of her college course.

The project starts in March and will run until August 2018 at Deenview Centre, Castlecomer, Co. Kilkenny.

During the art sessions, Tunde will take photographs and record our voices to document the work.

There will be also filming done during the project: this material will be edited into a film/documentary and can be shown in art galleries, at exhibitions or can be used by the Lámh Office.

You can decide that you do not want to be in any photographs or video footage, or you can decide that you do not want any picture or video footage of you to be used or seen by anybody outside the group.

This is your choice and you can say it is ok or it is not ok, this is called consent.

Tunde and Claire will talk to the group and to people one to one about this, to explain this more and answer any questions.

A session (or sessions) will be arranged at the end of the project for the viewing and listening of recorded film, conversations, photographs. We will talk to everyone in the group and listen to everyone's opinions.

Participants will have a say / choice in the selection of images and can decide at this stage if they don't want something to be included in the final cut of the film or the publication.
